Summary

With mobile phones getting more and more popular, this is a great project for that person that has everything. (Make sure you check your phone has somewhere to use this on, some of the more modern ones don't).

You can use this for so many other things. These work great on the end of zips, add that extra something to your jacket, purse or handbag.

Personalise it with your own moulds and charm ideas.

Useful Tip

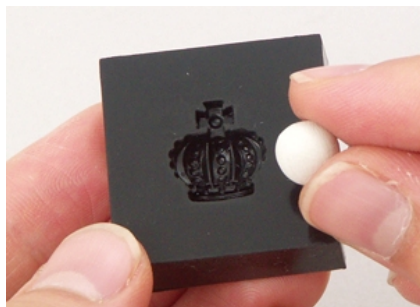

- 1) Don't forget to use some anti-stick solution in your mould. This will help the clay from not sticking.
- 2) To work out how much clay you need for your mould, experiment with a scrap piece of polymer clay.
- 3) There is some really useful information on how to dry your silver clay on our learn more page. This is great for all those people who just can't wait for it to dry naturally.

Push your clay into your mould.

Step 4

Push your bent eyelet into the back of your clay. This is going to be where you hang your charm from.

Step 5

Leave the clay to dry in the mould. Use a hair dryer to speed this up if you want.

Step 6

Once dry, remove from the mould and refine any rough edges with your sanding pad.

Step 7

Fire and finish your piece. (More detailed firing instructions can be found on our learn more page).

Step 8

Attach the strap to your charm. Flat or chain nose pliers are best for this.
